LONG LITIGATION FINALLY COMES TO AN END

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Ten years of incessant litigation, large sums of money expended, and a persistency attended with unflinching determination to have her rights judicially established, have finally rewarded Mrs. S. B. Mayer in securing title to the Winnifred placer holding in the town of Mayer.

A telegram giving her absolute possession, and free from further legal troubles, was received yesterday by her attorney, T. G. Norris, who was officially advised from Washington that the commissioner of the general land office had, on Thursday, authorized patent to issue for the claim in controversy.

This decision reverses, in two instances, that of the Phoenix land office, and quiets future title to the tract involved. The history of this litigation is interesting. Over 10 years ago, when Joseph Mayer, the husband, was alive, the government filed protest to the application for patent to issue to this placer ground of 20 acres, situated in the heart of Mayer, under the supposition of it being non-mineral, and as being valuable for town-site purposes. The second application was made by Mrs. Mayer, and the contention of the government was maintained on the same principle, in which the Phoenix land office gave an adverse decision to her, stipulating, however, that patent was withheld on the ground that there was not sufficient showing in work required. In deciding the issues of the two applications on appeal, the general land office holds that the ground is mineral, and is subject to location as placer. Patent thereto, is ordered to issue, and the decisions of the Phoenix land office are reversed.

The tract in controversy had been prospected scores of times by agents of the government, who maintained the grounds were non-mineral, when it was conclusively proven to the contrary by the placer gold values recovered. The Winnifred tract is situated to the east of and adjoins the main settlement of Mayer, and takes in the right-of-way and buildings of the Bridshaw Mountain Railway Company. It is desirable to the town, and is improved by several residences.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mayer first drove their homestead in what is now the thriving town of Mayer, over 30 years ago. A modest little eating station was established for stage travelers and miners passing in and out of that region. Their business prospered, and step by step the place grew, finally reaching an established center of abode. One building after another went up, and finally in a later era Mayer prospered as a permanent and attractive settlement. The founders of the town have always pursued a generous disposition toward those within and without its confines. The tract of land on which stands the new school house was donated to public education, as well as a strip of the Winnifred location also offered for this purpose. In short the energy of the Mayers from first to last to build up has been admitted, and their liberality in dealing with the many is a tribute to their good citizenship.

NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERING
But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.
Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death. Medicines patched me up for awhile but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken. I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles."
